

Somewhere Else Instead

Did you ever feel as if your standing in a place you where before
You thought time had passed you by but it's knocking at your door
And the world it keeps on turning regardless of the time
And your heart feels every second but you have to draw the line

CHORUS

I guess that I've been in better times before
I don't know where I'm going or what I'm looking for
But I know that I am still inside your head
But I can't wait I'm looking somewhere else instead

Ever since you said its over I have wasted every day
Trying to find the reasons why your love for me has changed
Well I often think about you and the way things used to be
Tell me does your green eyes ever smile for me
